No Stir in Chile auses

report from Washington that the TT conclamerate had of-Agency had allocated $11/mil- 182 1221115t foliate. The Chilion between 1964 and 1973 to lean government printed a pasupport anti-leftist political activate of all the tion in Chile caused no excitement here today.

volvement in Chilean politics but a comple book persion of have been so persistent in the the TI con the past 10 years that they were past 10 years that they want po-accepted as fact by many po-litically aware Chileans long before a military coup de-before a military coup de-mass.) in his request for a con-configuration of dor Allende last year.

tional news agencies sent the opposition grew that year. news to their Chilean subscri-

Santiago's government-conlish news of the report, printed today in the United States on the basis of secret then bureaucrats and profestestimony before a congressional men reacted with the sional committee by William first of two waves of strikes

As long ago as 1970, just after Allende was elected president as the candidate of a leftist coalition, Chileans in the upper levels of several political parties believed that foreign funds had come into their country at campaign time from several sources.

Christian Democrats, then at the end of six years in power under President personal Eduardo Frei, admitted that their party had been supported by Christian Democratic parties in Germany and Italy. The conservative National Party claimed that the left had received funds from Communist and Socialist parties abroad.

An executive of an American copper company in Santi-ago said privately that his company had contributed campaign funds to non-leftist candidates in the campaign just ended.

On the left, among Allende's supporters, it became an article of faith that the CIA would pour money into the country to frustrate Allende's attempt to bring socialism to

There was little evidence to connect the CIA with Allende's political opposition un-

SANTIAGO, Sept. s-ine fil the disclosure in 1972 that Central Intelligence forest al million to the CIA for the uncularity released by Washington columnist Jack

Reports of CIA financial in- no grath, and later brought gressional investigation of CIA involvement in Chile, $5 On this warm, sunny Sun-million for "political destabiliday, no government official zation efforts" and $500,000 could be located to comment for opposition politicians had been authorzed between Al-Radio stations did not men-lende's election and 1972. In tion the report in their news Chile, rumors that CIA fuds broadcasts, although interna- were being channeled to the

After the nationalization of American copper companies. There was no certainty that large Chilean companies and banks, Allende's economic poltrolled newspapers would publicies began affecting the mid-Colby, the director of the CIA. that were to spread civil unrest and economic disorder through the country.

The strike leaders denied, then, and again during the strikes that preceded Allende's downfall last year, accusations from the left that they were being financed by the CIA. However, this year, one of the men involved in orbeen available.

"We never used them, we never got any," said Vicente Kovacevic, an officer of the Chilean small businessmen's federation, in an interview in April. Kovaievic, an anti-Communist Yugoslav emigre to. Chile, had helped to guide the shopkeepers' group through the 1972 and 1973 strikes.