

Wash. Post, Aug. 13, 1963, pg 1
U.S. Builds Up Undergrounds

174-6

Support in Cuba

By Dan Kurzman
Staff Reporter

The United States is engaged in a concentrated effort to build up a strong underground network in Cuba. This effort apparently began in May or June and consists of smuggling trusted Cuban exile agents, cash, arms and other equipment into the country. The arms are being buried for future use.

Even activist exile groups that most bitterly criticized the U. S. Government a short time ago for inaction or ineffectiveness in its approach to the Cuban resistance movement now agree that Washington has never been more active or efficient.

This heavy concentration on building up the movement contrasts sharply with the emphasis placed on aviation before the Bay of Pigs fiasco in 1961 and with the confused program for dealing with Cuba that followed.

'State Rights' Amendments Disapproved

Lawyers Oppose Plan To Reverse Court On Reapportionment

By James R. Clayton

CHICAGO, Aug. 12 — The American Bar Association today voiced its disapproval of the proposed "state rights" amendments to the United States Constitution that would give state legislatures the right to make reapportionment proposals.

The amendments would give state legislatures the right to make reapportionment proposals, a move that would reverse the Supreme Court's decision in 1962 that state legislatures could not make such proposals.

The amendments would give state legislatures the right to make reapportionment proposals, a move that would reverse the Supreme Court's decision in 1962 that state legislatures could not make such proposals.

The amendments would give state legislatures the right to make reapportionment proposals, a move that would reverse the Supreme Court's decision in 1962 that state legislatures could not make such proposals.

The amendments would give state legislatures the right to make reapportionment proposals, a move that would reverse the Supreme Court's decision in 1962 that state legislatures could not make such proposals.

Extradited

Decision on Perez Believed 1st Such In U. S. History

By Arthur O'Brien
Editor, News (Associated Press)

The United States yesterday ordered former Venezuelan President Marcos Perez Jimenez extradited to his homeland for trial on a charge that he embezzled $13.5 million in public funds while in office.

It was believed to be the first time in U. S. diplomatic history that the United States has deported a former head of state of a foreign nation. Secretary of State Dean Rusk signed the extradition order ending a complex, four-month legal battle that involved political controversy over U. S. relations with the present anti-Communist government of Venezuelan President Rómulo Betancourt.

Perez Jimenez, the Major General who ruled Venezuela from 1948 until his overthrow 10 years later, is now in a Miami jail. When informed of Rusk's order, he reportedly gazed at his teeth, clenched his jaw and said, "That's a guest."

Associated Press quoted a "high source" in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

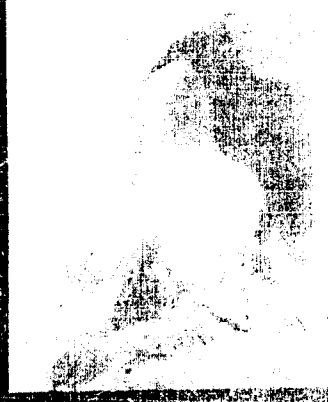

But it might be another case of a high source in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

But it might be another case of a high source in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

But it might be another case of a high source in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

But it might be another case of a high source in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

But it might be another case of a high source in Caracas as saying that a chartered plane carrying a special detail of detectives left the Venezuelan capital last night for Miami. Perez Jimenez, 60, was expected to return to Caracas today.

It's almost time again for the computers all over the world. At this time, the Rose Hill School, Carleton Place, Ont., is holding a 'Boys' Milk' watch as usual.

Dillon Offers Alternative Tax Cut Plan

Treasury Proposed To Not Reduce

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 — Sen. James H. Dillon today offered an alternative tax cut plan that would reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent.

The plan would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent. It would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent.

The plan would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent. It would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent.

The plan would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent. It would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent.

The plan would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent. It would also reduce the top marginal rate from 70 to 60 percent.

Third Buddhist Dies by Fire

SMOON, Wis., Aug. 12

Three Buddhist monks died in a fire that broke out in a monastery here today. The fire started in a kitchen and spread to the main hall.

Three Buddhist monks died in a fire that broke out in a monastery here today. The fire started in a kitchen and spread to the main hall.