

TRAINING AFFORDED POLICE

1. According to records available to the Office of Security, three separate three-week training courses were held for an aggregate of 17 police officers from Washington, D. C., Fairfax, and Arlington Counties, Virginia, between 1968 and 1969. The courses, which were presented by the [redacted] at the request of the Office of Security, were held at [redacted] Agency installations in [redacted] and included tutorial instruction in lock picking and positive audio surveillance. This training was basically predicated on the need of the police departments to combat the tangible threats posed by radical terrorist groups within their jurisdiction.

2. Also in July and August 1972, two one-week courses in lock picking were held at a [redacted] Virginia, for the benefit of 10 police officers from Washington, D. C.; Fairfax and Arlington Counties, Virginia; and Prince Georges and Montgomery Counties, Maryland. This training was actually given by a senior representative of the Office of Security using [redacted] facilities.

3. While records of the Office of Security reflect no further training activity in these areas, liaison with [redacted] has revealed that their records disclose one additional three-week training course offered to police in lock picking and positive audio surveillance. This course, according to [redacted], was given in October 1968 and was attended by six police officers from Fairfax and Arlington Counties, Virginia.

d. The office telephone numbers of [redacted] and [redacted], and the home telephone number of [redacted] were given to Montgomery County Police for emergency contact purposes involving technical problems.

e. [redacted] and [redacted] volunteered their advice and recommendations regarding future technical problems encountered in the audio surveillance area.

3. The three Montgomery County Police officials were most appreciative for the past, present, and offer of future support rendered by the Office of Security.

Supervisor [redacted]

26 May 71

Per chief [redacted] Division was requested to advise [redacted] on a monthly basis the support rendered to the Montgomery County Police by [redacted] Division.