This CIA document, dated August 3, 1962, is a persuation of wheters on the telephones of both Marilyn Monroe and syndicated columnist Dorothy Kilgallen. It discloses that Monroe had learned of top government secrets. Item I refers to a discussion between Dorothy Kilgallen and Howard Rothberg regarding Monroe's troubled relationship with the president and the attorney general. Item 2 confirms that she was repeatedly calling Robert Kennedy with complaints about being ignored by JFK. Item 3 verifies her threat to call a press conference. Item 4 reveals that she had been made privy to top secret security matters. Item 5 confirms that Monroe kept a "diary of secrets." The document is signed by James Angleton, CIA chief of counterintelligence.
