Senators Secretly Quiz Student Aides on CIA

telligence Agency subsidies of ard Helms about the student the National Student Associa-association financing and other

After the session yesterday, Chairman J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., told newsmen: "It's none of your business" what went on.

There were two witnesses, dent association.

The committee's independent inquiry ran counter to the stand of Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who said again yesterday that he sees no need for a special investigation of the controversial subsidies.

Michael Wood, 21, formerly in Wood then was dismissed the CIA financing of the students and their programs.

It was Sen. Albert Gore, D-Philip Sherburne, 24, was questioned.

mittee asked him to appear, but he would not discuss his testi-Sherburne said later the com-

Fulbright Won't Comment

"We've had an executive meeting," Fulbright said, "and I don't care to comment on it,"

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the session left him more convinced that the CIA should be "drastically limited" in its activities.

"It certainly ought to be brought under open surveillance by legislative committees of the Congress," Morse said.

A special Senate subcommit-

The Senate Foreign Relations tee headed by Sen. Richard B. Committee held a three-hour Russell, D-Ga., already has secret inquiry into Central Insubsidies allegedly supplied to

Old Stuff, Says McCarthy

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, D-Minn., said yesterday's session was informal and produced little both former officers of the stupublic.

"It's pretty much the story

He said some members of the committee already have interviewed NSA President Eugene Groves.

Michael Wood, 21, formerly in charge of student association fund-raising programs, testified first. It was Wood who went to Ramperts Magazine with the student field. But he said, original story of the CIA financconcerned about the impact of

It was Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who blew the cover on the committee's secret inquiry.