The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Monday; Dec. 2, 1974 WASHINGTON POST

ies Through

By Jack Anderson

guise their shadowy pasts in the netherworld of espionage. One according to our sources, made from the cold. Their tale is one lawyer's papers eventually of double lives, torture, and a wound up on the desk of a U.S. spectacular jailbreak engi-neered by the CIA. In the inter-named I. L. Smith. est of their safety, we have decided not to identify them by was an agency case officer. We name

In 1969, the two men-one a lists, but the mysterious Mr. Scotsman, the other an English- Smith has apparently dropped man-were leading what ap- out of sight. peared to be normal lives in the white supremacist nation of lice began to notice the strange Rhodesia. One was an editor for comings and goings of the two the Rhodesia Herald in Salis- secret agents. The "spooks" bury, the second an attorney in were followed and photoprivate practice.

At the time, the government of were intercepted. They were ar-Prime Minister Ian Smith had rested. been declared an outlaw by the United Nations, and the rest of to our CIA sources, the journalthe world was ostensibly refus- ist and the lawyer were merciing to trade with it. In truth, lessly beaten and tortured, and businessmen from several na- the details of their clandestine tions were secretly violating the lives were slowly drawn from economic blockade against them. Rhodesia.

The journalist and the lawyer closed doors and convicted of were recruited by the Central violating Rhodesia's Official Sebreakers. As they pursued their was sentenced to 18 months at and distressed alcoholic may be documents and data and drop-four years on the rock pile. Somewhere in the Western ped them off in mail boxes at a The United States, in world at this moment reside two post office in the suburbs of Sal-men whose routine lives dis-lisbury. The journalist's information, is probably a journalist, the its way to a man named Paul other a lawyer. O'Neill, the U.S. consul general They are spies who came in in Salisbury at the time. The

Smith, say our CIA sources, have scoured the diplomatic

. Eventually, the Rhodesian pographed and their documents

While imprisoned, according

They were tried behind professions, they also gathered documents and data and drop-ped them off in mail boxes at a The United States, mean-program in which he will get while, was seriously considering the withdrawal of its consulate in Salisbury. Prime Minister Smith, in desperate need of official recognition, wanted the United States to stay. With this bargaining chip, Washington managed to negotiate the release of one spy, who was delivered to the airport while allegedly en route to prison.

The Rhodesians, however, stubbornly refused to give up the other. The CIA, say our sources, freed him by staging a daring jailbreak, then whisked him off to a new life in another land.

Footnote: The CIA refused to comment on our story. Paul O'Neill, now the State Department's "country director" for South Africa, was traveling in Africa when we called and could not be reached.

Scientific Drunks-Alcoholics desperately seeking treatment have been used as guinea pigs for government-funded experiments in which doctors dose them with more booze in the name of science.

periments are frequently adver- afoul of animal lovers who are tised as "treatment" centers, outraged when baboons, which Intelligence Agency to pass on crets Act and other regulations. Yet, our investigation shows are sober by nature, are turned information about the embargo On Dec. 12, 1969, the journalist that once inside, the vulnerable into lushes.

still more liquor.

Susceptible to any suggestion, many agree and some are even paid to go back to tippling. Then they are given varying quantities of alcohol to see how it affects them. In the end, they may be dried out and treated without alcohol.

We have found programs being carried, out by doctors from such famed institutions as the Jefferson Medical College of Brooklyn's Philadelphia, Downstate Medical Center, and New York's Payne Whitney Clinic. Similar experiments have been conducted at Veterans Administration facilities and other hospitals.

Many doctors feel that any additional alcohol is damaging to an alcoholic, particularly to his liver. The consensus is that the only way for a true alcoholic to stop drinking is to "leave the stuff alone" completely.

Some doctors also question the ethics of human guinea pig techniques and recommend instead use of baboons or other The hospitals used for the ex- man-like animals. But this runs < 1974. United Feature Syndicate

C25