Dear Friends:

It now appears that I will go forward with my disbarment suit against Haile. I, therefore, would appreciate any final materials, or rearrangement of materials that you think should be enclosed in the suit. I hope to have the suit retyped and ready within a day or so, therefore will reserve an appendix for your materials, and refer to that appendix in the body of the complaint.

What has happened to date is this: My two political friends cautioned conservatism and wait and see. My boss's injunction against a state board was not heard as the attorney general's office decided, at the very last minute, to withdraw their complaint against my boss. However, this did not open the door for my taking the land surveyors' exam, as is my right. Instead, my boss will, in the future, need to prove that he did in fact hire me legally. Whatever in hell that means!

My two political friends, therefore, now believe that the AG office is not about to play fair under any circumstances, and therefore they are prepared for me, and themselves, to batter at all doors. Thus, the suit against Haile as one outlet.

Thanks,

Perry A. Chapdelaine
