Dear Miek,
Herowith Frane-Un, as you asked. If you oan accopt tijg lotter as a bill for ${ }^{\text {\& }} 10$ plus whatever the gestage is, I'd ap reciste it because as the country's smallest publishor 取 total staff is an overmoricel wife.

I don't think I sentioned it to you or Martin but an seen esI krew whether I cen sell the ancillary rights another book, having nothing to de with keky, will appar. I await the printer's delivery.

I an groinably the writer who has made mor: use of the Freedem of Information lav than any othor if not all combined. This work is the yield of one such suit. Nothing like it on the sppeks, in Allem Dulles' own woris. Still staniped FUP SECR.T.

Lease hardled that suit for me. He is my associate in the book. In fact, he berrowed the meney to say the printer and we had to awanden the book for our Ray case work.

Had you had the time when you were using the Fereasn depesitien I could have shown you ig oniy copy. I expect to hear fres tha printer moashtarily om when he will deliver. But we' 11 have to cerasurge witil I have exhausted whatfofforts I can make on the ancillary rights. Jeser, how wery has sewe copies. The zrintar is far Washingten. The price is $$ 6.25$ including postage. I alse onclose a list of the other hosks. If you will accept daraged copies they'Il bes free. If you went thez.

The little party last week was ixpertant to we beosuse I was pretty uptight avout what I oan't tailk about. And I was glad to get to know you and "artin just a little bit better. I an fasiliar with sese of your (pl.) work. Se, thanks for it.

Untill apjeal we will net be able to get cepiens of the Kay transcripts. If you have copiss of your storien, they could bo helpful if you can spare thom or bidcu copies.

Legally, Ray is a pauper. But until ap eal he is not entitied to a transcript. And we, unfunded, can't afford to buy it.
I have a special intorest in Poreman. The Wx. Post uses little of your cepy, se if and when that story appears, I have thin apecial interast if you have a spere copy.
