MIAMI, May 24. Police were on the alert here today in the wake of a dynamite blast that damaged the office of an anti-Castro organization and a work stoppage by thousands of Cuban exiles.

of unrest among some Cuban exiles who are protesting the threatened U.S. deportation of militant anti-Castro leader.

Some officials fear the disturbances yesterday may have hurt greater Miami's chances of landing the Democratic or Republican presidential convention next year. The Miami Beach auditorium has been conor both of the conventions.

Unrest within the exile colony, which numbers about 125,000, stems from protests over U.S. detention here of Felipe Rivero, 48, a veteran of the 1961 Bay of Pigs Invasion. Mr. Rivero, who now heads an exile group that advocates violence, was arrested May 13 after allegedly announcing his intention to blow up the Cuban Embassy in Montreal.

He has been on a hunger strike for more than a week and Monday night was transferred from the jail cell to a hospital. The U.S. Immigration Service has scheduled a deportation hearing for him next Monday.
