Dear Bob,

Many thanks for the contribution, which will help much with the FOIA, and the other enclosures.

On Youngblood, be careful. Everyone just assumes that well-intended Wayne Chastain knew what he was talking about but he didn't and he's upset now that he knows who the eggs and sausage man was. Nothing at all like Youngblood. A student, as I recall named Crawford.

You are quite right on the flophouse picture. I've had it for years and more that goes with it. I don't recall if we used that in the 1978 evidentiary hearings or not but I had it then and we did use some of that series of pix in evidence. I understand that the originals were destroyed after the usual five-year span. The print I have is pretty clear and UPI made an enlargement for me, from the negative.

There is nothing new in the court matter. Lesar has completed the brief he had to get filed by last night and is not sooner will be working on that this weekend. The office moved yesterday and there is much confusion.

The drive back should have been more pleasant than the turnpikes if those parts of Pennsylvania are still anything like they were when I was a boy and knew them well. The rural areas of the county above Philadelphia and toward Trenton ~~SEEN~~ was a lovely place last time I was there, right after or rather just before World War II. Many writers and other such people had their homes in that area. Commutation to NYC and Phila. was easy and inexpensive. They grabbed up old farms and sometimes just the old farm houses.

Hope you were satisfied with what you could do in D.C.

Glad to see you again after a 1 those years.

Again many thanks and best wishes,

P.S. Youngblood has a boyhood pal who is one of the Memphis' outstanding lawyers. They are just waiting for someone with enough money to justify suing him. I know the lawyer and have known this for years. Wayne has no money, nor did Computers and Berkley.

HW 4 Lou (Gz of Luluhalla, Lucinda or Louise - I didn't get the word -

I had to use this old card because it reminded me of the frontal attack on the planter bed border - anyway it's worth a laugh or even two - and many thanks for lunch and an enjoyable time - I had to finish up the GKG Dividend after a 4-hr radio stint in RI and all that kept me away from the nice-ities of Thankyou notes et al -

Paris Flammond had rented his house and moved in to NYC so that was a flop but it's a lovely drive thru southern PA rather than the NJ Turnpike - here's a bit towards printing costs and as soon as I get out from remodeling costs here there'll be another bit believe me - I hope you can get George interested enough on Sept 10 to give you a column - even if it's only page 3 - cheerio
