thanks for your reply of the 26th I have written Bud and said that I would come to DC to see him when I can get my CIA friend to agree to talking briefly with me ... he is a classmate at college and general counsel of that ~~state~~ agency ... jsut exactly what the big picture is is what I'm interested in... meaning the carrying thru of the investigatory work with which you are involved so well ... I would hate to see it all go down the drain because of lack of ability to follow thru at the top, so to speak.... I would be interested in following thru with the tourist that took the pictures of what might have been partial re-paving of Elm St if you would not mind my doing this let me have his address and I'll see what I can scare up .. hope APB comes thru with a way to sell you ... if it would be of value I'll be happy to talk to them to help them think....

Thanks, but I think the help needed is not at APB but at those engaging speakers. Intending no disrespect or disparagement, I suggest neither you nor you and Bud together are in a position to cope with the CIA general counsel, for collectively you cannot know enough about that part of the material or their subsequent actions and activities. This may well be counterproductive. To a large degree, this is true of me, too, although I have much more knowledge. You do your thing, but frankly, I'm leery. Looking forward to seeing you here, though. The tourist who took the pictures is the night man following Fred Gale at WDC, Bud was with me the second time I spoke to him. He said he forgot or couldn't find the pictures but the truth is he is scared and doesn't want to get involved.

Best,
