Dear Dave,

Thanks very much for your letter of the 26, which did not get here until yesterday. Took a day longer than Cindy's. I appreciate your taking the time and trouble. And it is helpful. 8 dup!

Cindy did refer to what you refer to as my page numbers but her letter omitted in what ~~I~~ and I had no copies of those attachments. I indicated on each xerox the title of the volume from which I copied it. It was just too much for me now to have to track through all the possible sources when I got her letter. Why she gave an incomplete source I do not know. An infinite number of books share the same page numbers.

I did refer the entire matter to Gallen because there was not a single response to all the letters I'd written about pictures. I'll send a copy of your letter to Raphaela.

I think that for my own file and possible future use, including in another book I think is due in September, I'll want a print of each. I do not know what size they'll prefer but I think they'll be better off with 8x10, which I would prefer for file.

My situation is such that shovels are ~~ex~~ verboten. Fortunately, good friends have dug us out, mechanically. This past Wednesday the all-night grocery stores had to close and Thursday morning the early men on the nearby AM radio station were more than 1 1/2 hours late although there were near the station on time. All the plows were on the main highways, near which that station is. But they did not clean the crossovers and they radio people were in their cars about two minutes from the station until the crossovers were cleared. I had an excellent commercial model snow blower but when I was forbidden virtually all exercise I gave it to the college.

I think copies of the book will be available soon. I'll try to get you (pl) early copies. It is about a fourth of what I wrote but remains a powerful indictment and I think a real insight into the most intendedly dishonest of all the bad books. He is pretending with you, I think because he feels it. By the way, what happened to that Wolper/min-series for HBO-TV for last month? I've not heard of it. Perhaps it died, as it should have. Because as you may remember I can't help getting up early I retire early. So evening TV is strange to me and this time of the year Lil has her tax work.

The sleep apnea caught up with me early this morning, an extreme rarity. I was wide awake before 1, took my usual half-minute just laying there, then the usual half-minute sitting up, then put my feet over onto the floor to sit there for another half-minute before getting the hearing aids and glasses and suddenly I was sound asleep. I sat there asleep for two hours! Did not fall over, either. This rising in stages is to let the heart get pumping. But if that sudden sleepiness hits you when driving, mama mia! It never has with me. By the way, Cindy has the only copies I made of these pictures. So I can't send them. Again thanks and best to you all,

Harold
