

3 suggests it relates to Reagan shooting, from his phone call Jack

THE NEW YORK TIMES, FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 22, 1964

BURT LANCASTER
as Gen. James Mattoon Smith
Mastermind or master fanatic? A patriot in his own peculiar fashion. He would sacrifice everything and everyone.

KIRK DOUGLAS
as Col. Martin "Jiggs" Casey
A strange coincidence, an overheard conversation, a crumpled piece of paper, a discarded woman in a rumped bed. They spell one word to him... treason.

SEVEN DAYS IN MAY
AN ETERNITY OF SUSPENSE!

FREDRIC MARCH
as the President of the United States
He has met more than 25,000 important people. One day he has to make a list of trusted friends. It adds up to five.

AVA GARDNER
as the Mistress
The General used her like she was his private property. Would his love letters become the key to the most bizarre plot ever conceived?

6 months before release of movie

EDMOND O'BRIEN
as Raymond Clark
One of the trusted five. But how far could he be trusted with his love for life, liberty, Dixie and bourbon?

From the astounding best-seller about an astounding plot.

MARTIN BALSAM
as Paul Girard, the President's aide.
Somewhere, along the conniving corridors, a man must walk who is not himself a conniver—only brave.

Is America ready for a western that says more than "bang-bang-bang"?

We're talking about "The Outcasts," a boldly unconventional series for ABC's millions of new-breed young adults—and young-thinkers of all ages—who've had it with "head 'em off at the past, boys."

It's a story drawn from the West of 100 years ago, but the overtones reach clear up to today. Two men come together just after the Civil War. A white man from the slaveholding Virginia aristocracy. And an ex-slave exploring his new freedom. They must ride together to survive—so they must learn to temper their bitterness with understanding.

This is the kind of right-now programming young-thinkers twist their dials for. And this fall, ABC is where they'll find it. Where the outlook is young. Where the attitude is unconventional. Where a cowboy can be a real person, and get away with it.
