Delay Granted In Davis Trial

SAN RAFAEL, Calif.—A judge yesterday delayed Angela Davis' murder-conspiracy trial until Nov. 1 to allow her attorneys time to wind up their arguments on pre-trial motions, including a request to move the trial to San Francisco.

Miss Davis has been in jail awaiting trial since last January. Her attorneys have filed numerous pre-trial motions aimed at having the charges thrown out and getting her release on bail.

Judge Richard E. Arnaon, the fifth jurist in the case, said he would hold a hearing Oct. 5 on the remaining motions.

Miss Davis' attorneys contend the 27-year-old former UCLA professor cannot get a fair trial in this suburban county, scene of the bloodshed in which she is accused of being involved.

The charges against her are that she conspired with and provided weapons for Jonathan Jackson, the teenager who invaded a courtroom on Aug. 7, 1970, in an attempt to liberate a number of San Quentin inmates. Four persons died in the resulting bloodshed, including a county judge.
