

"Deep Throat Jr. (H)": The military killed JFK HW 2/26/75

The attached letter was in today's mail. It is unsigned, has no return address, and concludes with a request for comments and personal contact.

Yesterday when I was carrying stones from inside the house there was a call from a man with a foreign accent. The phone was answered by a black man, also heavily accented, who was here helping me. The caller said he would call back but he didn't.

The W. Atlee Burpee envelope used had been meter stamped at Warminster, Pa. 2/18. When mailed to me from zip 207 yesterday p.m. a Legend of Sleepy Hollow stamp was used.

I have not opened the envelope flap. I slit across the top, thinking without looking that it was a seed sales letter for Lil but addressed to me. On reading the contents and taking a closer look, it appears the flap was resealed with cement. Without prior drying, as those experienced with rubber cement, like commercial artists, do so that with drying sticking is better.

The hiding is fairly effective this way and I can't respond to Burpee!

The paper used is plain government bond. Its size is visible in the copy.

The letter is typed in red ink. The address is on a separate sheet of the same paper. I copied the envelope with that folded in it as it was on mailing.

I believe that when "Deep Throat Jr. (H)" received the mailing from Burpee he had this or a similar use for that envelope in mind. His cementing is not perfectly neat, some of it showing. And the mark of a letter-opener is visible in places.

I have read this letter once only, when I received it. I was busy all day and it is now late so I'm not going to reread it now. Bed instead and rereading when there is time for a careful rereading.

There were, I think, a few clues in it. Style, language, cliches of a sort, etc. The zip is for the Montgomery County area.

I have had contact after many calls with one who calls himself "Martin" and has a Russian accent. I think it was 2/3/75. I have a record of it. He lives in that general area, saying the "heaton area."

This man is well versed in spook literature. He referred me to a part of KGB that I did find valuable. We later discussed it - the selection and the work - without disagreement. He says he has had an intelligence connection. He does not appear to be poor but gives the impression of having to measure his expenditures with care.

We met in "echingers, where I actually bought some very inexpensive seed. I said I'd carry a copy of Whitewash IV for identification and it served that purpose. I'd picked the meeting place because I was going there for purchases, including seeds. He also bought some. He has only a small back yard, with trees in sufficient number to give little space for plants.

Thus there could be a point in the Burpee envelope. It would then also indicate that "Martin" is not a new resident and probably was on a mailing list. Or had made an inquiry, answered by individual letter.

Suggestions solicited.
