Q. In your retrospective opinion which were the three best and the three worst appointments made by President Nixon in his first Administration?—
Ernest Henry, Chicago, Ill.

A. Three of the best appointments: Henry Kissinger as National Security Affairs Adviser; Daniel Moynihan as Urban Affairs Adviser, and Pat Gray as acting head of the FBI. Three of the worst appointments: John N. Mitchell as U.S. Attorney General; Maurice Stans as Secretary of Commerce, and William Rehnquist as Associate Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court.
