

The Hoover phone logs appear to me to be incomplete.

H is quoted I think in his Manchester interview at least as phoning Bobby Kennedy at least twice 11/22 63. The logs show no such call. They do have ^{two} ~~one~~ to the White House, which he says patched him through to Hickory Hill.

I believe that his day began some time before these logs reflect on 11/25. That was a heavy day for the assignment he gave DeLoach, to talk the Post out of endorsing the formation of a Presidential Commission as the FBI had learned it intended,

The records I have on that do include the hours on some of them. They did involve instructions from Hoover and reports to him.

I may not recall correctly but I do not recall his phone conversation with Katzenbach the afternoon of 11/24 in which he agreed to what Katzenbach was going to write LBJ via Moyers.

I've checked. The logs are blank entirely for 11/24/ Can you believe that for the second day after the assassination? That he spoke to nobody at all?

I see now that making the letters out as I did not before there are two called to "AG" through WH switchboard. The first at 1:43 was five minutes before Shanklin's from Dallas. Probably from the UPI ticker in Hoover's office that he got the first flash. But it is interesting to me that with/as major an event Hoover left at 11/22 at 6:01 pm.

Interesting also that for 11/23 names are replaced with "spoke" except for some FBI names. If the "spoke" means Hoover spoke to them, then all day he at most had only two calls (he did not take) from outside the FBI and I cannot make those two names out. That seems impossible the day after the assassination,

I have some questions about these as you can see from the above.
