wanted to make Kennedy look bad and Morrissey's nomination prenation. Johnson had no conrete reason to dislike Morrissey; he only sented him with the opportunity to do so sixty-five by that time, past retirement age for federal employees, and their relationship when LBJ became president. The director was over when Johnson served as vice-president, but there was a change in frequent dinner guests in each other's homes. They remained close the days when Johnson was a senator from Texas, they had been Kennedys in common—and more. As neighbors in Washington since president's signature each year. That waiver put Hoover right in he stayed in office only because of a special waiver which required the whether or not it fell within the bureau's jurisdiction. And Hoover tage of Hoover, using the bureau as his personal investigative arm. Johnson's pocket. With that leverage Johnson began to take advanlegal. There was absolutely nothing Johnson wouldn't ask of the FBI. His never-ending requests were usually political, and sometimes ilwas simply because the bureau lacked the capacity. hot-footed it to Johnson's demands. The few times he let LBJ down, it Johnson and Hoover had their mutual fear and hatred of the displeased that this had been leaked to the press and said he was to be secretary of the treasury. Johnson made it clear he was very to appoint Kermit Gordon (then the director of the Bureau of Budget by the Washington Evening Star saying that the president was going the bureau and said he was damned disturbed about a story published FBI against the press. As an example, on 15 March 1965, LBJ called Whenever the occasion arose, President Johnson would use the going to put a stop to it. a calculated policy designed to get the press obligated to the FBI so tacts. What we did not tell President Johnson was that it was the FBI we had done this before for him and obviously we had good press constory. We said we'd do what he asked. He reminded the bureau that the FBI would not and could not leak any such information because that we could subsequently use them. What we did tell LBJ was that who had leaked the information to the Star in the first place. This was The president told us to "discreetly" find out who leaked the

we did not know Mr. Gordon was under any consideration. a patent sources of information lie. We had had the tip early from one of our countless highly placed from his bedroom. served in the Senate. DeLoach's relationship with Johnson continued most a son to the director, to act as FBI liaison to Johnson when he seemed to be Hoover's protege and at other times seemed to be aleventually DeLoach obtained a direct line to LBJ's White House visited with the Johnsons at Camp David and at the LBJ Ranch, and became a member of Johnson's inner circle. DeLoach and his family into the White House where, much to Hoover's chagrin. DeLoach Hoover had chosen "Deke" DeLoach, a man who at times boss, did the same was always careful to see that the attorney general, Hoover's nomina and Johnson, through DeLoach, treated Hoover with kid gloves and wanted to, which I doubt. All Hoover wanted was to stay on as direcmuch in the back seat, almost a captive of the president and his FBI Hoover literally turned the bureau and all its resources over to Detor, to avoid retirement. Appearances were maintained, however, liaison. He couldn't do a damned thing about it either, even if he had Loach and Johnson to use as they saw fit, and he found himself very Because his advanced age put him in such a precarious position general that the director's advice should be sought, particularly on fudirector and the FBI. The president, DeLoach said, told the attorney dent wanted Hoover to know in confidence that he had called both ture appointments in the department, and especially the assistant at the attorney general and deputy attorney general into his office and had specifically instructed them that they were to get along with the orney generalship of the Criminal Division. The president had also structed the attorney general to initiate luncheons or regular meetbund very long and that he hoped the FBI could put up with him es to which he should invite Hoover. DeLoach told Hoover that inson was sure that Attorney General Katzenbach would not be the time being For instance, early in 1965 DeLoach told Hoover that the presi-