"Businessmen are next on the list" of Marxist-oriented extremist groups, the head of the FBI's domestic intelligence division told the 57th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce yesterday.

William C. Sullivan, an assistant director of the Bureau, spoke to 2500 members and wives on "The Uptight Generation" in the grand ballroom of the Washington Hilton.

He commented: "The issue isn't reform, but whether we in this country can have freedom under law."

Sullivan said New Left and black extremist groups sought disruption or violence for its own sake. He said they were subject to foreign influence and Marx, Fidel Castro and Ho Chi Minh were among their "idols."

While the attack of these groups currently focuses largely on campuses, "it is a total challenge to the economic, political, military and sociological" aspects of American society as well, he said. "This summer they intend to test you."

Rate recruiters on campus was the beginning of the attack's spread to the industrial sector, he said, adding:

"This summer they intend to test you."

He concluded by urging businessmen to eradicate the grievances on which revolutionaries feed.

"Inequities must fall before social justice . . . oppression before freedom . . . the germs of fascism before tolerance, good will, and democratic values . . ." he said, stirring prolonged applause.
