

1 pwb 11/11/64 in 1969, from W.C. Liles

Oswald eyed move before killing JFK

News-Journal (W.I., Del.) 12/10/77
Washington Star Service

WASHINGTON — Lee Harvey Oswald wrote that he was planning to move to the Washington-Baltimore area a month before he assassinated President John F. Kennedy in Dallas in the fall of 1963, according to newly released FBI files.

This disclosure appeared in a letter he wrote the Worker magazine in New York from New Orleans in September 1963. He wrote that he wanted to know how to contact the Communist Party in this area "as I plan to relocate there in October." The only reply Oswald got was very guarded and indicated he should plan to operate not underground but in the background.

Instead Oswald went to Dallas, and it was there on Nov. 22, 1963, that he shot Kennedy from the window of the building in which he worked. Two days later, Oswald was dead at the hands of a nightclub operator named Jack Ruby.

The Oswald correspondence was only one page of the 40,001 documents released this week under a Freedom of Information Act request. But it illustrates the dilemma created by release of the raw FBI files.

All manner of information from the wildest "nut" calls to the serious communications between officials at every step of the investigation of the Kennedy and Oswald murders are now available, but there is no ready way for the press or public to separate the wheat from the chaff.

Nowhere in the raw FBI files can a reader methodically find out, for example, why Oswald didn't come to the Washington-Baltimore area or what his intentions were if he did. In that sense, the release of nearly half a ton of unindexed, inconclusive documents raises more questions than it answers.

There are scores, even hundreds, of such mysteries, even if one culls out the "nut calls" from people who contacted the FBI with everything from their dreams and fantasies to conversations they overheard which seemed suspicious to them.

The FBI dispatched agents to track down every report, no matter how added, drunk or just mistaken the listeners were.

One of the stories related in the FBI files, and written with the standard humorless style used by the agents, was that of a woman from Hominy, Okla. She succeeded in getting nine letters written by the FBI to the Warren Commission after charging that the FBI knew all about Oswald's purchase of a rifle and his trip to Mexico before the assassination. She also got the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's dander up because he wrote that she was conducting a "scurrilous campaign of vilification."

Another woman from New York got considerable attention from Hoover when she claimed that an FBI agent who was 10 feet tall and very well built was responsible for the whole thing. Hoover admonished her for making unsupported statements about the FBI and its personnel.

The documents show that the bureau left few stones unturned in its investigation of Oswald and his murderer, Ruby. But the raw files also make it obvious that Hoover from the outset was determined to share the investigation with no one.

He and his aides feuded with the Central Intelligence Agency, the Dallas police and even the State Department, and they resisted the formation of a presidential commission. And when the Warren Commission was ordered into being by President Lyndon B. Johnson, Hoover made very sure he knew everything the panel was doing as well as controlling most of the evidence it was given.

As the investigation progressed, the FBI turned up many bizarre and startling leads. Here are some of the more noteworthy:

■ Agents learned of an Army captain from Fort Benning, Ga., who was contacted by a North Hollywood, Calif., dentist, ostensibly a member of the ultra-conservative National States Rights Party. The dentist told the captain in early 1963 that the organization needed a group of young men "to get rid of Kennedy, the Cabinet and all members of Americans for Democratic Action and maybe 10,000 other people." The captain backed away from what he regarded as a crackpot idea, but said he had the definite impression, the dentist was propositioning him on this matter.

■ Priscilla Johnson McMillan, who recently wrote a best-selling book about Oswald's widow, Marina, was actually considered a suspect in the Kennedy case, according to a Telex message from the Washington field office to the New York FBI office just five days after Kennedy's death. The message refers to Miss Johnson as a suspect in the case and tells of two FBI interviews with her on Nov. 23 and 24, 1963.

■ Adam Yarmolinsky, then a powerful Defense Department employee and widely known academic, called the FBI — where he was not popular — to inform the bureau that Oswald's activities reminded him of another individual, a former GI named Nicholas Petrucci. Petrucci had renounced his U.S. citizenship in Moscow, just as Oswald had done in 1959, and then returned to the United States. An FBI official told another in recounting the story. "The director asked if it is accepted practice by the State Department to allow individuals who have renounced their citizenship to return to the United States."

■ W. O. Stinson, administrative assistant to wounded Texas Gov. John B. Connally, passed on to the FBI second-hand information about an overheard plot to kill Kennedy that was set afoot three weeks before the assassination by three unnamed oilmen. As Stinson told the story to the FBI office in Dallas after Kennedy was dead, the three oilmen had put up a great deal of money to have Kennedy killed. It was not possible to discover in the FBI documents the outcome of this startling tale.

■ FBI officials M. A. Jones and Cartha D. DeLoach worked up a statement in Hoover's name in early 1964 rebutting what was called the false statement that Oswald was a confidential agent of the FBI. They prepared a press release that said Oswald had never been employed in any capacity by the FBI, had never received any payments from the FBI and was not a confidential informant.

AND - See 11/11/64
Mc Millan

Publisher 1964
by W.C.