

Information, Privacy Acts Chill Contacts, CIA Says

Federal laws allowing citizens and aliens to obtain confidential information from the CIA have curtailed the agency's contacts with intelligence sources, according to testimony from Deputy Director Frank Carlucci.

Carlucci, testifying before a House intelligence subcommittee yesterday, said requests under the Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts also are time consuming and costly.