Dear Bud,

I've sent the Davison stories to Paul, who is also working on this. Can you please have your girl duplicate them for me? I'm almost out of copy paper and now cannot purchase more of it and the copies were not clear enough for copying anyway.

Spoke to Moo and Lou and Alcock yesterday. Today Lou will have a girl begin copying transcripts for me, those they have. They do not have Shaneyfelt, Regis Kennedy. I'll let you know which ones I have and you can then copy those you'd like.

If you get McCall's and do not keep it, I'd like the Clark article in the current issue on the FBI's King wiretapping. Fine indignation, Clark's. One wonders only why he didn't do anything when it was his obligation to, when he was Attorney General, when he had jurisdiction over the offender but lacked the courage or integrity to exercise it.

The Atlanta stories refer to one not included, I think one of a Sunday. Also, would you please have your girl indicate the paper on each, if the originals are identified? Thanks.

Jim's oldest boy gets brain surgery today, from a cerebral hemorrhage following a fall. When the doctors got into Jim's spine they decided against a freezing operation, which would immobilize that part, in favor of a chancey scraping and cleaning of that particular joint. If it does not succeed we'll require another operation, I guess.

Moo says they are ready for the Shaw trial now (famous words), with witnesses who would not have testified in a conspiracy case ready to testify to seeing the right people together. He evaluates these are credible witnesses, believes they will convince a jury. It is interesting to me that Shaw's attorneys did not capitalize on the good public-relations he enjoyed after the trial to insist upon an immediate one in this case. He and Alcock both asked for you.

Best,
