Bud, Jim,

More on the "investigative file exemption, again from my proof reading (17-18):

language in
Clark says, "the effect of the/exemption (7)", the one on the right to withhold investigatory files cited by both Kleindienst and Lyster, that it "seems to confirm the availability to litigants of documentary from investigatory files to the extent to which Congress and the courts have made them available to such litigants! The only possible avoidance he mentions is if such statements "contain information unfairly damaging to the litigants or other persons"

This is from 38. Men, it even says damaging stuff must be available, unless it is "unfairly damaging."

How apt for the Ferrie complaint.

But not good for Sirhan?
