

Jim about 10 minutes ago Bud was to speak to the seminar at the local college. It was arranged by JFK's Postmaster General, Day, whose son is a student there. Naturally, when you have something to send to me and he is coming here, he is silent. As I once told you, Bud is very secretive where I am concerned. One way, that is. Even if it is socially inexcusable. I could not care less about what he says and I sure will not if I get some feedback when I am there. However, there are reasons why he should have spoken to me because if he pulls his regularity toilet overflowing it will be very hurtful to me and he will have no way of knowing even that it is possible. His stench will stick to me when they are considering whether to try to raise money for an archive. I can only hope that the real ultras stay away. I don't care about the class or the prof., who I know well and who will have to leave before Bud finishes unless Bud says little. Or the students. It is the administration. ...His manners are what one would expect from the combination of born rich and Harvard and State Department... Long talk with 'lissner last night, very long one with Lindsay today. Neither he nor I are encouraged. He expects word tomorrow or Wednesday. HW 2/26/71
