The AARC, which was established in 1984, is a long needed, centrally located, and permanent center for the study of assassinations. One of the principal aims is to collect and preserve all sorts of materials which are of value to scholars, and which otherwise might be scattered and lost. We have already received a number of large and valuable private collections.

The scope of the AARC is wide. Its parameters enclose all assassinations—national and international, historic and current. However, it deals only with political murders and attempted murders, not with the even broader field of homicides generally.

The AARC is located in a five-room suite at 918 F Street, N.W., in the heart of downtown Washington, D.C. It is directly behind Ford's Theater, a block from the FBI Reading Room, and two blocks from the National Archives. As soon as funds become available, we hope to relocate in a Washington townhouse, with more space for our facilities.

Our research materials include:

- Several thousand books and articles on assassinations;
- A massive central research file dealing with several hundred assassinations;
- Priceless unpublished manuscripts;
- An excellent collection of photographs, files, and tapes.

We have a number of specialized research tools such as:

- A computerized index of 15,000 names and events;
- All available FBI and CIA documents used by the House Select Committee on Assassinations, as well as a recording of all public sessions of that Committee;
- The released FBI documents relating to the RFK murder and the attempt on the life of George Wallace.

The AARC is establishing relations with a dozen universities where courses on assassinations are being taught. Additionally, AARC is a member of the American Historical Association, the American Political Science Association, and the American Library Association.

To encourage the study of assassinations, it is the policy of the AARC to make its facilities available free of charge, to all serious researchers and scholars, regardless of age, and whether members or not. However, members will be able to borrow books records, and documents, as well as have the privilege of calling upon the organization to do minor research.

A membership application is on the reverse hereof. We hope that you will join. And do not forget, the AARC has been granted a "501(c) (3)" tax exemption by the IRS: hence dues and gifts to AARC are tax deductible; our tax-exemption number is 52-1354369.
