Dear Mary,

What is enclosed was in two envelopes I have found that + hadn't mailed and I ought I had. The stuff is just stacked up all over the place. I have been rushing to complete the rough draft of the Bylaws to WI, and I've done that tonight. In the morning I see the orthopaedic surgeon and if he recommends surgery, I'll have it done as soon as possible. Inevitably, this will restrict the use of that hand and typing, so + now have another enormity and one hand for editing.

Lily's work is slackening off a bit, as it always does in mid-season. She has a backlog that will keep her busy for a while, but if you found any minor error in the additions I sent you - and you have the only spare copies - that little typist she can squeeze in and + have learned to post them without using the left thumb. So, if you are going to have any, I'd sure like to have them.

You have been so silent for so long, I've been wondering if you are all okay. I know you are here, but I thought perhaps you might have made a trip to see Henry or the Dean, have copied what I think I left for that, and perhaps have typed the notes. I mean, after all, what is it to hold down a full-time job when the firm is deep in the biggest case it has ever had, to have pneumonia and a family to care for and a few things of your own work!

I've finished the Lattimer stuff. Anything else there is gilds what I'd hate to call a lily. It is devastating, and I've caught and proven more dirty work. They just can't stay away from that X corral, can they? Lattimer helps. He is not very bright, has an enormous ego, and can be worked, to a degree, with buttons.

Best to you all, and hope you are ok.

Sincerely,
