Reading the book that Fetzger has cobbled together creates a wonder: has advanced education destroyed common sense?

Another wonder is, do we have monogram hands and toilet tissue, each with Ph D on them?

He has his Ph D wherever possible on his back. Even on its lover.

But the book itself raises more than substantial questions about his common sense.

This wonder is not limited to him. It is not that he alone asks this question. Reading the other essays, he uses to get himself the publicity he craves. This is what all the other essays require, and, with some, that was before Fetzger.

Mantik's 11/2/92 interview with Ebersole pp 433-4 is typical of all those who allege that the autopsy film was altered - he did not try to learn more about either the crime or its investigation and when Ebersole volunteered what is now that he on more than one occasion was called to the W.H. to examine two X-rays, which I've seen, nothing about any when all Mantik says is that they were probably ripped, not any effort to learn who called him there and why or with whom. These nut case only about validating what they make up & makes no sense at all.

They, as best recall, attribute no purpose to what I believe is criminal.

Then interest is not in the assassination, in learning more about it. It is in their nutty notions in which they display their ignorance of the actual evidence - and have no interest in that or in what makes belief to be wrong & to give it no purpose and is refuted by the actual evidence see over

Eberde was not a W.C. witness. If Mantik had any interest in anything besides his business he would have tried to follow up on what was known & what was new and that Eberde had sold only that he had about
