Dear Mr. Frazier:

Harold was glad to get your letter of April 28 today. He is a little too weak to answer himself as he is currently recovering from a combination of pneumonia and pleurisy.

We are sorry you and Dianne couldn't get here and hope that in the future you may be able to.

Harold thinks that if you can persuade Rolling Stone to consider and publish an article on him that is other than an axe job he will be the first to make shrimps whistle.

However, he is quite willing for any kind of an interview once he is really back on his feet and has had a chance to catch up a little. He is following the newest misuse of the autopsy materials and would welcome any stories of whatever origin you may see.

We both congratulate you on admission to law school. If the distance between us does not make it impossible, our friend and lawyer, Jim Lesar, may ask you for help. Once you have the facilities of a good library available, it is not at all impossible that you can help.

Our best,

Lillian Weisberg

McMeekin has adopted the incredible posture that the Zapruder film does not necessarily show JFK being hurled backward because of a bullet fired from in front of him. In fact, the AP said, McMeekin theorized "that a muscle spasm caused by massive brain damage caused Kennedy's head to snap backward." And so it goes, as Kurt Vonnegut would say.

At any rate, I discovered an error in your latest volume of the Whitewash series which may be of some minor interest to you. On page 20 in the last paragraph, you refer to Georgia's late senior senator as "Richard Bissell Russell." In fact, his name was Richard Brevard Russell.

Since we last spoke to each other, I have received some exciting news. I have been accepted by Emory University School of Law and will begin my studies this fall. I intend to concentrate on criminal law because, like you, I believe there is a critical need in this area. The United States would do well to consider adopting some form of Great Britain's solicitor-barrister approach to handling court cases.

I plan to attend summer classes so that I may finish in about two years. Though it is certainly premature, I would like to volunteer my services at this time to assist you in any future litigation which you might undertake regarding the Warren Commission. This, of course, would be free and would be given in the interest of history and truth.

Please let me hear from you as quickly as possible so that we might meet formally and conduct our belated interview. Once again, I must apologize for not having contacted you before.

Sincerely,
Chris

Dear Harold,

Spring, I have learned, is an extraordinarily active period of the year at Berry College, and the pace of work quickens. In the eleventh hour, I found it necessary to complete some chores before beginning my recent vacation. When all was said and done, Dianne and I were only able to get away for three days. That, of course, was too short to make our planned visit to Washington, D. C. and to your home in Frederick.

The press of time forced us to settle for a vacation site considerably closer to home (i.e., Savannah, Ga., where I was born). At any rate, it is still my desire and intention to meet you soon. I am currently trying to arrange through Rolling Stone magazine (which seems to be the only publication of any consequence which has not accepted the Warren Commission's Report) to conduct an interview with you at your residence. This, of course, is contingent upon your approval and upon Rolling Stone's expression of interest. Please let me know what you think of the idea.

I have just read a story bearing the AP logo which reports that the Rockefeller Commission has appointed a team of five medical experts to examine the autopsy file on JFK. However, a member of that team has already said he has found nothing to refute the theory that Oswald, acting alone, fired the fatal shots from the Texas School Book Depository. Interestingly, this particular member is Lt. Col. Robert R. McMeekin of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.
