

Dear Jim,

3.20/95

Thanks for those records that include the Frazier sketch. They appear to be a different set of sketches of the limo but they hold the content Randy wanted. My guess is that what you sent is the sketches he made at the scene, witness his using a ruled pad. My recollection is that the set I seem to have mislaid was neater, on unruled paper and different in other ways that may not include content. Although this set says the view of the windshield is from the outside. I do not remember that from the other set.

I do not recall any earlier notations of "no value" relating to the fragment specimens. It was not true when Frazier wrote it. At the very least they were of, and he knew they were of great value in spectrographic and ~~neutron~~ neutron activation analyses.

~~There~~ ^{There} are also some glaring omissions relating to the bag and the blanket. For example, there is no reference to the absence of any oil or smudges that could have been from oil. In fact neither had the slightest trace of any oil- from the "well-oiled" rifle.

My recollection and of course it could be incorrect, is that the other set of sketches reflect the deposits of debris from the head on the hood. I think that might be of interest to Randy.

If there is someone there you can ask, I think the other set is worth trying to get for Randy. If you do, I'll appreciate a copy, thanks.

Although these sheets say HSCA on the side, the cover sheet says SSCIA, Church.

As of today's mail no word from Cyril or Chip.

Thanks and best,

I think the space between the jump seats in this set is greatly exaggerated. The reason might be innocent but is there any reason to assume it is? I think not. Hoover had already ordained the lone assassin.
