Dear Richard,

I've been sending copies of Selections to those who helped me on Never Again! and Case Open and to a few in the media with whom I've exchanged opinions on whether all the literature is conspiracy theories.

The reactions I've gotten are all good, including the cover.

Several who are familiar with my books have commented favorably or more than favorably on the selections and the organization.

The Louisville lawyer Bill Weichter whose wife was so helpful as a medical records expert in particular.

He also helped me with the Senator Cooper archive he is active in trying to fill out.

Although I think you've eliminated it, he also tells me that Lexis is not a complete index, that it includes only selected cases. However, I'd been told long ago by Roger Feinman that there is no record of Posner ever filing any lawsuit. I think Roger may have ~~fi~~ checked the NY court records.

Best,

My friend Hal Verb, who was at that Green Apple appearance, confirms Hoch on it and got the impression that the title Case Closed was not Posner's idea but was Random House's.

I have another friend who was there but because he is Posner's mother's ophthalmologist I've not asked him.
