

Dear Richard,

3/7/94

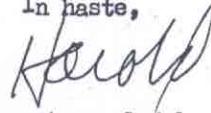

Fortunately, from Diana's confusing phone call - that the printer is running late therefore you need this even earlier, by tomorrow - I spent the weekend on this. I'd have sent it first thing this morning if I had not had medical and dental appointments the entire morning. I was home just in time to take her call. When I finish this I'll package it and take it to where UPS will pick it up for overnight delivery.

I had much of the morning with which to give this some thought. As I said earlier, this can't just poop out, without any stated conclusions. I cannot think of anything you cut out that would be suitable. However, I did think of a fairly simple wrap-up I can do without taking much space. You'll have it soon.

The book simple must have stated conclusions!

No serious work can end this way, just running out of steam, as it appears and can easily be interpreted as doing and be clobbered on that alone.

In haste,

My best thinking, I believe, was during the 1 1/2 hours of a root canal job. After I dozed off a couple of times early in it.
