Mr. E. Richards Belknap
Spec. Asst. to the Deputy
Attorney General
Department of Justice,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Belknap,

It is a disappointment to me that I have not heard from you in the three weeks since you phoned me. I comfort myself with the hope you are accepting my suggestion and acquiring a personal knowledge of the fact about the panel report. The most reticentary inquiry should be enough to satisfy you that you were, quite seriously, misinformed by whoever provided your information. If it does not, I am prepared to establish this to your satisfaction.

I did follow your suggestion and write Mr. Fisher. I understand he has sent you copies of this correspondence. It has not been satisfactory, nor has it been either forthright or responsive.

However, I do hope we can resolve this without litigation. It is in this hope that I continue to wait.

On another aspect of what has been and is being withheld, my correspondence with your department goes back to the previous administration. In your files there should be copies of my correspondence with Mr. Nixon. I can supply copies if you cannot find yours, but I believe yours should contain notes I do not have, and those might be helpful to you. I refer to documents relating to the late David William Ferrie, of New Orleans.

The National Archives has just informed me of some, probably most, of the withheld documents in 3575 of the Commission's files. They say these are withheld, collectively, under Guidelines SA, SB and SC. This may be the reason given but it is not the real one. Furthermore, it is not applicable, in part because everything withheld under "S" must be "material which has not already been disclosed in another form". If it has been, this guideline then says it "should be made available to the public". Ferrie's perversions, the names of those who lived with him or who associated with him or were in the GAP with him are well known and this has been thoroughly publicized. Because it is apparent that there is no relevance in SA and SB, I assume if there was ever any seriousness here it was with respect to SC. The first part of this cannot apply, for what might fit has been so well publicized. I would encourage you not to believe that all of this is "of a personal nature having no significant connection with the assassination of the President", for I have some of this in my possession and, were it to become necessary, would produce it in court with consequent embarrassment to the government. Apparently few, if any, in the government are willing to believe my intuitions are not to cause think kind of embarrassment and I follow them to the detriment of personal considerations, which would benefit from the scandal I seek to avoid.

Furthermore, if the foregoing were not the case, the government has already waived those provisions because it has never imposed any restrictions on the indexes which clearly establish the connection between Furrie and these other people. Moreover, in the case of Layton Martens and Alvin Karpis and, I believe, Melvin Gaffey, the lawyer in the case, Milton Bruner, has extensively publicized their relationships with Furrie. He has done this both in a book and in serialization in the newspapers.

You will find Mr. Vinson informed me a review was then in progress and I would hear after it was completed. This is directly contradicted by the National Archives. I have both statements in writing.

As with these things I told you about the panel report, I hope you will recognize that I am trying to be forthright with you. If you think about this, you may come to understand that it is precisely because I want what I believe I am entitled to, not scandal, and that I also want government to function properly, not to circumvent the law and regulations. Incidentally on this, you should find that I wrote the Attorney General soon after he assumed office trying to alert him to the possibility, to never the certainty, that those who had made the initial errors on the lower level had a vested interest in self-protection and that he might become another of the victims of this mess.

Truth is the essence, credibility and popular trust the by-product. None are possible when the government withholds improperly any evidence when the subject is the murder of a President and its official investigation.

I make this further suggestion: if the Department can free itself of the captivity of past error, all issues can be resolved on a friendly, cooperative basis that, ultimately, will cause the government least embarrassment.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
