Dear Dr. Ginoichio,

I'll be able to provide Post Mortem but I can't be certain that I'll be able to provide printed copies of Whitewash. It is almost out of print. I'm 70 and not well, so I have to balance my desire to keep it in print with other responsibilities. I'm getting estimates on a reprint and if I make it I'll be adding new material.

I have kept all the books I published in print.

If I do not reprint, I'll be glad to give you permission to xerox. If two pages are printed on a sheet and both side of the sheet are xeroxed, the cost will not be great.

Either way, you'll be able to depend on its availability.

If as I suspect you get nowhere on finding copies of Roffman's excellent work, I'll put you in touch with him so you can make a xeroxing arrangement, if you'd like that. His is a fine book.

Where the course is taught responsibly, not as conspiracy theorizing, students report uniformly that it is a very worthwhile educational experience.

Such a course is taught locally, at Hood College. From time to time those students use my files, which now include about 60 file cabinets, mostly of once-secret records I've obtained by FOIA litigation. (They also use my files on the King assassination.)

Others have joined in FOIA litigation and a large volume of additional records are being disclosed.

Good luck with your course.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg

Dear Mr. Weisberg,

March 16, 1983

During the next few weeks I have to submit a proposal for teaching a special project in January 1984 and I am considering doing this project on the cover-up and deception in the investigation of the assassination of President Kennedy. One problem I face is the availability of books for the students who sign up for the project. I have written to Fairleigh-Dickinson inquiring about Mr. Roffman's book. I would also like to use two books that you have written: Whitewash: The Report on the Warren Report and Post Mortem. The books would be ordered some time in November and I would need 15-20 depending on how many students sign up for the project. Do you have that many copies and would they be available at the time that I would need them? A speedy reply to these questions would be greatly appreciated.

You may be wondering how I developed an interest in this subject. Some 10 years ago I was a student of Mr. David Worne at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point. I attended the first assassination symposium which he organized of which you were a part. Over these past 10 years I have tried to keep in touch with Mr. Worne and with new developments concerning the investigation of the assassination.

I hope you are well and I look forward to hearing from you soon.

Sincerely,
Gerald Finocchia
