

Heal, Lil
Walter Glanze Word Books

The purpose of making this list (last October) was to inspire confidence when talking with the (very rich) friend of a friend, who had at least considered making me a $60,000 unsecured loan (character loan)--which he eventually, and quite understandably, decided not to do at this time. (It would have meant paying this amount off to him, at reasonable interest, rather than trying to pay off the IRS, which I could do only by paying nearly the entire amount at one time--because penalty and interest and the higher current tax that would accompany higher income would have to effect that my total ~~PERSONAL~~ PERSONAL REFERENCES tax debt would not be reduced-- see enclosure.)

see p. 10!

Any one of the these 75 friends and associates will vouch for my competence and my integrity.

--Walter D. Glanze
October 1990

PLEASE NOTE: Several of the publishing executives' names are preceded by an asterisk: Should you approach any of these 12 persons for confirmation of my work record and reputation, it would be in everyone's interest not to state the extent of my tax arrears; mentioning it might weaken my current or future negotiations for contracts, thus would slow down the rate at which I can settle my tax-related arrears.

I could probably double this list of 75 friends and associates who can vouch for my professional competence and integrity. (Some have been friends for almost three decades.) And there are many others who know me well enough and would say nothing but good things about me.

The same goes for a good number of other people whom I'd hesitate, however, to impose on in this context because of their health, their age, their limited time, or other factors; they include the following (to "drop" more "names"):

Ruby Dee and Ossie Davis [since 1968, socially]

Ralph Ellison [since 1970, when he was my next-door neighbor] ^{at 736 Riverside Dr.} (Rosa's)

Arlene Francis [since 1977, when she first interviewed me]

Alex Haley [since 1969, socially]

Jesse Jackson [since 1965; see next name]

Coretta Scott King [since 1965, when I was a bodyguard to her husband, in Chicago]

✓ Corliss Lamont [since 1968; I knew has late wife, Helen]

Toni Morrison [since 1968; she was an editor at Random House]

Ed Newman [since 1977 (though he refused to debate me on the Dick Cavett show, about the nature of the English language)]

Babatunde Olatunji [since 1970, socially (and my daughter and his granddaughter are friends as of last year)]

Charles H. Percy [since 1959, when he hired me when he was president of Bell & Howell, before going to the Senate]

William Safire [since 1977; fellow member in the Dictionary Society of North America] ^{through me}

Carl Sagan [since 1973, when I was his editor at Bantam Books]

Liz Smith [since 1977; quotes me occasionally in her column]

Alberto Vitale* [president of Random House; formerly my boss at Bantam Books]

The irony is that after paying over $32,000 in old and new taxes of this net of 49,463, my overall tax debt (fed., state, city) went up: was 48,000, is now 59,000. So, increasing my income is not the solution because the new tax Profit or Loss From Business bracket then goes up, too-- and SCHEDULE C at such penalty and interest, I see no way of catching up.
