

DUNCAN, Robert Kennedy. 1868-1914. ~~AMERICAN~~

American industrial chemist and educator, b. Brantford, Ont., grad. Univ. of Toronto, (B.A. 1892). Professor at U. of Kansas (1906-10) and at U. of Pittsburgh (1910-14). In Kansas he introduced system of fellowships for research in industrial chemistry which became the basic plan of the Mellon Institute and which greatly furthered the discovery of new products and new processes. He wrote several books for laymen.

Source: The Columbia Encyclopedia, 3rd Ed., (1963) p.605.