Dear Robert,

Dear Robert,

If it were not for the chance that Chris or the children might see this letter I'd use the kind of language you more than deserve!

My letter of 6/20 is not the only ~~ya~~ one your self-conceived imperial highness has not responded to. Your nonresponses extended to forgetting to return the $18 you asked for a print of offilm you then did not send me.

So, to a degree your consummate bad manners is not new. Nor for that matter is your glorified concept of who and what you are and knowledg.

A few minutes ago something else reminded me that again you have not responded.

You are preoccupied with affairs of sstate? The world will be ruined if you do not behave as a decent man behaves?

With this and so much more like it I can only hope that Chris can see to it that those fine children do not follow the model you set for them.

So you are too busy, too important, to respond?

Remember all those weekends I could do nothing else because you were here all those very many weekends?

My time was of no consequence- to you!

I do not believe you single me out for this bad behavior.

It is very unwise when you have a book coming out and it will be the eighth wonder of the world if you do not make a serious mistake you and the book can be clobbered over.

Your publisher has ~~just~~ called me to public attention.

I am sorry you turned out to be a no-good stinker with an exalted opinion of himself and of his knowledge.

Harold
