Dear Mr. Fox,

After we spoke this evening I did look for the tapes. I found them and have them convenient in the event you want someone to listen to them or to borrow them.

They are in a box, I'd estimate 15-20 in all. Regular cassettes.

This will also confirm my offer of unrestricted access to my relevant files.

It will also confirm my offer of the use of my copying machine and of copies of any of the records you may desire.

The closest xeroxing facilities are about a 20 minute drive. We live in the country.

Although my 3M machine is slow it makes clear copies. Whoever goes over the files can make copies as the records are read if it is done here.

There is also correspondence with McInley, before he sold Playboy his series, when I regarded him as a friend, and afterward. You will find that this correspondence confirms what I represent.

If I can think of anything of use to you that I have not I will make it available.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
