Dear Mr. Weisberg,

Please accept my sincere apology for not having written you earlier. I have been struggling to keep up with school since I got sick. It seems that in early April I contracted a strong virus probably from school. Well, the virus has left, but I have been getting infections like acute conjunctivitis off and on since then. I have been busy as a bee with my seven classes and voluntary tutoring. I would have written earlier but I kept forgetting to buy envelopes to send my letters!

I have not worked on your manuscript very much since I got sick. I am at the end of Chapter 7. When we met last, you had given me Chapters 5 through 11. If you want, I can send you the chapters I have finished. Or if you have need the chapters completed soon, I can give everything back to you. Unfortunately, I will not be able to work on them until after final examinations (which end on May 16). After exams, however, I may work on them every day. I am not taking summer classes, and I have not found a full time job. Therefore, I will have a lot of time on my hands, and I do need to earn money for the fall semester.

Again, I am sorry for my neglect. This is not my usual behavior. Please let me know what you decide about the manuscript. I will work on them as much as I can after finals if that is alright. Either way, do let me know.

Thank you for your patience. I hope you and your wife are doing well.

Sincerely,

Rebecca Price
