

"Six Seconds"
in Dallas

Robert Hughes's photo of the Depository and the presidential motorcade taken seconds before the assassination.

Dallas Police photo taken a short time after the assassination showing boxes in front of second window. It is evident that these boxes would not have appeared above the first lintel of the window from outside.

An enlargement from Hughes's film shows a figure in the window next to the assassin's.
