Dear Bob,

Your No. 24 is an excellent issue, better looking, too.

Now please pretend I am a relative plutocrat and a charter subscriber and do me this favor (you may have such in your files):

I'd like to know everything about the ownership of the ITM Buildings. Please say nothing of my interest, but it includes Cobb's holdings.

Development

Cross-Country ~~Leasing~~, subsidiary of Bloomfield Building Industries, are both connected, and I'd like to know everything possible about them, related business and personnel.

O In the summer of 1963 they had Room 101 of the old ITM but the listing has that office as vacant. In the future, if you are interested, I will give you the proof. What I am working on is two clear Shaw perjuries with which Jim did not charge him and one by Cobb. Until I get the whole thing together, I'd prefer you keep it to yourself. There was a James Lawrence from the Memphis office handling the leasing arrangements during just that period Shaw swore he was. I have a picture of him and associates leaving the old ITM with the blueprints of the new space and his official statement about these things. He says he was doing what Shaw claims to have been, and Cobb, too. Cobb, by the way, fired Shaw. The separation was neither friendly nor voluntary. Cobb hated Shaw, which makes even more fascinating that he not the lawyers arranged for the handwriting expert. And the one he selected.

P Best to you both, and thanks,

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
