Dear Lou,

It is now cortain that I'll have a set of afridavits Monday, so if you ever intended making copies from any source and sending them, don't bother. However, stories are a different matter. They may tell me som thing not in the afridavits or provide a clue to inspired focus.

One of my young friends in MYC got a copy of the T-P for Saturday, 7/5 and sent me that story. I read it in haste t is a.m., but it is clearly unfair and at best what is represented against im is double entendre, that is, something that can be taken more than one way, and they chose to take it a special way. With PC knowing what he was expected to accomplish, I think that in the hands of a good lawyer it could be exculpatory. It is at best ambiguous here.

However, my real point may be no point. This story refers to Steve paying a Fountainbleau bill with money PG then gave Jim, about $1,000. Of course, I know nothing about im's personal affairs of finances. So I do not know what this bill represents. However, I do have knowledge of an old bill, and if that was in payment of the old bill, it is entirely inconsistent with im having loaded up with loot for as long as alleged. You should remember the bill I mean.

This morning's Post carries a short story on the judge's rejection of Jim's motion.

But there is really no play here. Considering the number and extent of im's enemies, this is surprising.

I you hear any scuttlebutt on where they took Pershing, I'm quite curious. Not Sicily, I'll bet!

Best.
