You will remember the cute card Henry Haile sent me from Windsor, Ontario, postmarked November 24 of last year. We assumed his reason for being there could have to do with Cliff if not with the University, which is pictured on the card.

Well, I had a visit from a Canadian buff today, a Dr. Brousseau of Toronto.

He also was in Windsor that day. He remembers clearly that it was a Sunday.

No, he did not meet Henry there.

But the reason he went there is sort of interesting. Assumption University has a series of lectures on Christian Culture. Season ticket stuff for the most part.

That day's "Christian Culture Series" speaker was Penn Jones.

It is from him that Brousseau got his Zapruder copy.

Quite a coincidence that of all days of the year - all Sundays in fact - Henry just happens to be in Windsor the same time Penn is speaking there.

The kinds of things Penn could have said could have prompted Henry's spoofery.

You might at some point want to ask this man who undoubtedly now considers you another CIA agent if he recalls any conversation with anyone of Henry's description. Or maybe it might be better if Bud made the effort through Mary.

In any event, we both now have a record of still another of these coincidences.

I have Brousseau's note in his own writing, on the first convenient slip of paper I could find without getting up. It will be attached to my carbon.

Henry gets more and more interesting. Suggestions of his foolhardiness having possible meaning also come to mind.

Surprise!
