Mr. Weisberg-

(My parents are in their early 80's, so I have some understanding of the vagaries of old age. Much to your credit, as opposed to some, you are intellectually active and alert.)

Thanks for your notes.

No need to take time to respond to this note.

Considering Oklahoma City, there is opportunity of the moment to point out and make contrast, to the public that remains inert and imperceptive, in a devastating manner- The drawings and photos of suspects that appeared on TV this time but didn't before; the reward offered now but not before; if the FBI did such fine work this time, why did flail around and excuse things away last time?.... That is, the FBI cannot win-if it does well on several investigative accounts this time, it will be in a corner about not performing well last time. If it doesn't perform decently and well this time, it proves the case, that it is incompetent if not conspiratorial. And so on. A public means of keeping the fires of ardor and concern flaming; a provocation to those who were too young at the time of the past.

Bruce Kurek
