Dear Mrs Weisberg,

It was very kind of you to write (and also to send Post Mortem to me here in France rather than to my mother's address in Pennsylvania.) I'm extremely pleased if I could, in my small way, lift Mr Weisberg's spirits at a particularly difficult time by merely expressing my appreciation, thanks and admiration for a courageous and committed man (from what he has written you are quite an extraordinary person yourself, and I'm sure your daily efforts, concern and support have meant the world to him.) Frankly, it is I and future generations of Americans who owe Mr Weisberg a great debt of gratitude.

We all know how trends amongst the 'trendy' (read media and media followers) change over time. One day, I hope in the not too distant future, the truth will once again come to the fore. At that time what Mr Weisberg has been able to do will inspire a new examination of what has been successfully hidden from the public (though if the polls can be believed the public knows they're not being told the whole truth - and we know what Lincoln had to say about that!) For all Mr Weisberg has done I feel quite sure he will one day be granted an honored place in the annals of American history.

Very Sincerely
Patricia Kieley
