Rt 12, Frederick, Md. 21701 8/19/75

Dear Joizy,
Sorry not to have been able to answer your $8 / 11$ sooner. Thanks for the onclosures.

I'm all for people seeinc the Zapruder film and for Penn's distribution of it.
I'm not for the many and serious misinterpretations of it, though.
I haver copies of the items you listed, thanks.
When you can get to the library there is sometling neither Jim nor I have been able to do. It would be good for the appeal in C.A.226-75 for us to have aithor or hoth of two things:

Xerozes from a criminalistics text on how to go about performing spectroscopic and Xewutron activation tests - what is required, what evidentiary value requires, and particularly how the comparisons and tabulations are done numerically and comparisons made.

Similarly from a physics or chemistry text how in general these tests are performed - that they require, how they are prepared. etc.

What I need is sonething of this nature showing that the performance of the tests requires the collection, tabulation and comparison of figures. For your understanding, it is from these comparisons that conclusions are drawn. Winor variations in the figures can be significant.

I know of no reason to believe that Cooper evor did any real wonk or that the unsavory Bradley was connected with anything.

Even whet seems good in the prass may not be honest. An example of dishonesty typical for Stone is the King story. It quotes im Lesar and me as though it had actually interview us. The author never did. He ripped of what we had written. The quote attributed to Jim was his expression when an editor phoned to chhck the quotes. When I was phoned, again and only by an editor, I learned that what was made to appear as what $I^{\prime} d$ said during a personal interview was taken from my book, Frame-Up. I don trecall axything bad in the story but this is less than honest.

It is, however, also better than average for the press that appeals to your generation and the scandal sheets.

Most people raroly have any means of malding any evaluation.
Many thanks,
