Dear Art,

Didn't know you are a licensed Colt dealer!

Doubt the paper will pay much attention because those ads are taken by low-paid women on most papers and policy is beyond them and never considered by them.

I've been wondering what to do with an old but good automatic Savage pistol.

Years ago Dick Bernabei told me it had some value to collectors.

He was a scholar and a firearms buff. PhD in classics.

It was Lil's grandfather's. I bought it from him about World War II, when he was well into his 80s.

We have a gun law here and I can't carry it. I used to, when I'd climb to the top of the non-public land on this mountain every morning. I had to carry it because of bad dogs and worse owners, extreme rightists for whom a bad dog, running loose in violation of the law, was a manhood symbol.

I think it is a .32. Nice piece. Haven't looked at it in years. With heater.

Good luck!

Dear Hal:

The enclosed shocked me. The letter is my 4th re-write... the first three were absolutely livid! I'll let you know what response (if any). If there is none within a reasonable time, I will copy in the publisher and at the same time send copies to such as the National News Council, ANPA and Pen & Quill and whatever else I can think of...disgusting.

Thanks for your thought on "abuse of court processes" re: our delay here - but - last time I discussed something similar with our attorney he said (in essence) that all appeals being filed were in fact just part of the normal procedure allowed them under existing law and therefore was not a process abuse. However, I am going to take it up again with him.

Best

Dear Sir:

As a probative journalist and a reporter who has long followed the JFK assassination story, I could not help but bring your attention to the enclosed photocopy of an ad that ran in your paper recently.

Frankly, I think it reaches a new low in bad taste...something readers have not come to expect from one of this nations finest newspapers.

Any gun - especially that model - can be adequately described without the recall of its past misuse.

Do you agree? And if so, will you take any steps to insure that this type of gory citation does not occur again?

I look forward to your response.

Respectfully submitted in the kinship of journalism.

Art Kevin
