

U.S. Details Case On Kissinger Plot

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 8 (UPI)—Federal officials say that during their investigation of an alleged plot to kidnap presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger they uncovered plans by antiwar activists to raid government offices in nine states.

The disclosure was made Tuesday when federal attorneys filed a court brief in the case of the Rev. Philip Berrigan, an imprisoned Roman Catholic priest, and seven other persons.

The eight were indicted by a federal grand jury here on charges of conspiring to kidnap Kissinger, blow up the heating systems of five government buildings and raid draft boards.

The court brief detailed the role in the alleged conspiracy of Boyd F. Douglas, 30, accused by the defendants of being a government informer.

Douglas was a prisoner with Berrigan in the Lewisburg, Pa., federal penitentiary.

Federal attorneys said the defendants planned to raid Selective Service offices in Rochester, N.Y.; New Haven, Conn.; Dover, N.J.; Philadelphia and three unnamed communities in Delaware.

According to the brief, the defendants also considered raiding draft offices in Buffalo and Syracuse, N.Y.; Richmond, Va.; Pittsburgh and other unnamed communities in Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Indiana and West Virginia.

The document named 41 persons in addition to the eight defendants who attended meetings where the raids were discussed. They include John Peter Grady, 46, alleged ring-leader of a raid on the Camden, N.J., draft board offices, and other persons charged in that raid.
