Dear Ray,

Thanks for your letter, the pictures and the list and the promise of oranges. No need to phone me when they are available. I prefer those that section, those that can peel and eat. Of what I know that Florida produces, the regular tangelos and the Honey-bells that I think come in later, the navels, Temples and then the tangerines. Locally there has been no Florida pink grapefruit until this week. I prefer them to the Calif.'s I've been getting when eating oranges are not on the market. I like them all, fortunately.

I did hear from Jim and after months he finally did what he said he'd do with that long article. He is a fine person, though, only overloaded and underorganized.

Hope he decides to let you have the 26.

Yes, considering what you had to work with the pictures did turn out well. Thanks for them.

I think I'd started a book when you were here. The rough draft is finished now but with my recent experiences that I do not want to relive I plan no submission and they will be a record for our history, perhaps to be published later.

Thanks and our best wishes,

Harold

Thanks for seeing me again, and putting up with all my questions. Hopefully I am asking reasonably intelligent questions, as I feel you have given me a better insight into this matter than could be ascertained from reading the material that is available today.

As I mentioned to you on the phone, Jim Lesar gave me a fair amount of his time on Wednesday in Washington, which was a first. Must be that name dropping I did when I told him that " while I was at Harold's house on Sunday, he asked me to get him some answers to a few questions he's been waiting for" bought me some credibility. It would be great if I can talk him into selling me the set of Warren Commission volumes that he has. He said call him after the first of the month to get his decision.

Thought you may like copies of the pictures we took, as they came out pretty good ( considering what I had to work with.....meaning you not your wife. Just kidding.) I will give you a call when they start selling eating oranges around here to check exactly which kind it was that you preferred.

Thanks again, I thoroughly enjoyed it, and am working on my next batch of questions.
