

New Evidence Confirms An Elaborate Plot...

JFK ASSASSINATION CASE TO BE RE-OPENED BY INVESTIGATORS

by DREW BAXTER

New evidence has been found which could prove that President John F. Kennedy was not assassinated by Lee Harvey Oswald, but was, instead, the victim of a master conspiracy.

The theory is substantiated by the fact that an incredible number of people who were witnesses to, or participated in any way in the events that took place that tragic day in Dallas, Texas, died under mysterious circumstances.

A recent book, "Executive Action", and a movie based on that book have also given new life to the possibility that the entire investigation into JFK's death will be re-opened, and that this time, the real truth will be told.

In the three-year period that followed the murder of President Kennedy and Lee Harvey Oswald, 17 witnesses interviewed by the Dallas police, the FBI or the Warren Commission died: six by gunfire, three in motor accidents, two by suicide, one from a cut throat, one from a karate chop to the neck, three from heart attacks, and two from 'natural' causes.

JOHN F. KENNEDY... Who really killed him?

Statistics requested by the London Sunday Times to compute the life expectancy of only 15 of the deceased witnesses, concluded that on Nov. 22, 1963, the odds against all 15 witnesses being dead by February, 1967, was one hundred thousand trillion to one: 100,000,000,000,000,000 to 1!"

In the controversial book, "Executive Action", in which authors Mark Lane and Donald Freed maintain that the Warren Commission, specially appointed by then-President Lyndon B. Johnson to investigate the assassination of President John F. Kennedy, is an insult to American intelligence.

The authors, after 10 long years of exhaustive research since that fateful day in Dallas when JFK was slain, firmly believe Lee Harvey Oswald did not act alone. In fact they feel that he actually may have been an innocent victim of an elaborate conspiracy engineered by a group of extremely wealthy and powerful industrialists.

The 17 witnesses, who died within three years and three months of the assassination, apparently were exterminated to insure their silence, the authors state. The "lone assassin" explanation must not be questioned for fear of unbelievable complications concerning those involved.

Now, coinciding with the publication of the book and release of the movie of the same name, Lane and Freed have announced they are pushing for the real truth — no matter how messy it might get!

"We wrote this novel and a screenplay in order to give a message of hope to the American public that the decade of lies and conspiracy is coming to an end," explained Lane. "We are seeking the opening of an independent investigation into the assassination of President Kennedy.

"Our strategy includes publicity, teach-ins, and the establishment of continuing investigation committees on campuses nationwide."

According to Freed, petitions also will be circulated and sent to all members of Congress to provoke official response. In addition, a fact sheet repudiating the Warren Commission's findings will be sent to Washington legislators.

Freed also announced that the first step in the national campaign will be the signing of

The Warren Commission's report on the JFK assassination is now considered a "whitewash" by most experts. A coroner who studied the evidence and others who have looked more closely into the murder of JFK are convinced beyond a doubt that a lone assassin could not have been responsible for killing the President and Freed made it clear that the producers and distributors of the movie "Executive Action" were not speaking for them when they stated the film is "nothing more than entertainment" and "no re-opening of the investigation is being sought."

The plan to demand an independent inquiry was first exposed to public attention at a convention at Georgetown University in Washington, D.C., this past Nov. 23 and 24. Chief organizers of the convention were author Norman Mailer and prominent Washington attorney Bernard Fensterwald, Jr., counsel to Watergate burglar James W. McCord. Fensterwald is the director of The Committee to Investigate Assassinations.

The convention, which marked the 10th anniversary of JFK's assassination, drew people from all walks of life who feel the Warren Commission findings — particularly the "one bullet theory" — is ridiculous.

Reopening of the Warren Commission is being sought by many who have been following announcement of the death of JFK. This would have closed the case right there, the conspirators felt.

The authors of 'Executive Action' are firm in their belief that the fatal shots were not fired by Oswald and instead were fired by a three-man team, positioned inside the School Book Depository and at two other locations nearby.

One location was a sewer near the railroad located directly in front. The authors claim this is the shot that, as Abraham Zabruder's movies reveal, caused the President's fatal wound.

Contributing to the growing clamor for a re-investigation of JFK's death was the announcement by Dr. Cyril Wecht, a forensic pathologist, who investigated autopsy materials and concluded that it was "physically impossible" for only one gunman to have been responsible for Kennedy's assassination. "Not any one person could have been the shooter," the Pittsburgh coroner decided. "There had to have been at least two people shooting."

Dr. David Wrono, a history professor at the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, after studying details of the assassination for ten years, concluded, "it's an irrefutable fact, there for any common citizen to see, that it was a conspiracy."

Lee Harvey Oswald ... a bum rap?

Dr. Wrono, Dr. Wecht, and other experts are all in agreement. The Warren Commission investigation into the assassination of JFK was a "whitewash" and the whole, unvarnished truth is yet to be uncovered.

With the book and movie, "Executive Action", to spur the public conscience and curiosity by its authors and other prominent Americans to get to the bottom of it, Americans may soon know who really killed the President.

Watergate events rather closely and see, in its complexity, how there might well have been an elaborate plot to kill President Kennedy.

Lane and Freed offer an educated opinion that certain industrialists didn't like the direction in which JFK was taking the country. They felt he had to be assassinated — for fear that there might well have been 22 more years of Kennedy's occupying the White House: six more years for John, eight years for Robert and eight years for Ted in that order.

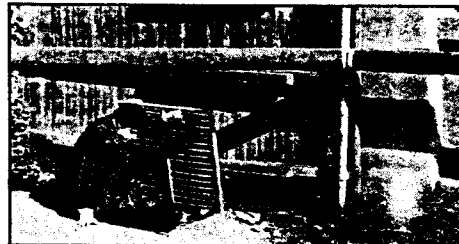

Therefore, the authors maintain an elaborate plan was set in motion in which paid killers were hired and specially trained for the assignment.

To cover up their tracks and give substance to the "one nut theory", Lee Harvey Oswald was made the scapegoat. He was handpicked well before Nov. 22 apparently believing he was getting involved with the 'fair play for Cuba' organization. (Oswald's last words before he died were: "No-No! I'm a 'patsy'!")

The authors say groundwork was laid to make it look as if Oswald was planning the assassination by himself.

The conspirators probably even arranged for Oswald to get a job in the Texas School Book Depository, which would put him in the right place at the right time...for their purposes.

Lane and Freed feel strongly that Oswald, who might have not even seen the President's caravan that day, was targeted for assassination himself immediately following the

Is this where the assassin or assassins stood when the fatal shots were fired? This photo, released by New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison, shows the entrance to a storm sewer on the notorious "grassy knoll" from which the great majority of witnesses say the shots came from. Lane and Freed noted that new evidence has been discovered which would warrant re-opening of the investigation, and all the data will be revealed sometime early in 1974.
