

For fifty years this foreign correspondent made history as he reported it.

ISAAC DON LEVINE EYEWITNESS TO HISTORY

"There is no question that Levine was there—and often inside 'there'.... In this highly personal memoir he describes... a remarkable range of events: the still-controversial murder of the Russian royal family; World War II and the continuing Middle East conflict; the Hiss-Chambers affair;... the assassination of JFK."—Publishers Weekly

"A real dazzler. When a great reporter has the luck to move among the earthshakers when history is alternately exploding and pivoting, that is unbeatable copy."—S. L. A. Marshall, Brigadier General, U. S. A. (ret.)

"A keen observer, a superb reporter and writer. He gives us a graphic interpretation of the turbulent events of our times."—Foy Kohler, Former U.S. Ambassador in Moscow and Special Soviet Advisor to President Johnson.

"Isaac Don Levine is one of the last of a group of American correspondents who were eyewitnesses to history at a time when the map of the world was being violently redrawn.... He takes us into areas where no ordinary foreign correspondent could ever have hoped to penetrate."—John Barkham
